

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A technique for performance-monitoring of a standard SONET signal involves first converting the optical signal to an electrical signal, removing in the framing signal time slot the framing signal for leaving only the framing signal noise in such time slot, and separating the framing signal noise from the data signal for viewing as a measure of the quality of the SONET signal.

FOR THE